

Moon-Randolph Homestead Gathering, September 30, 2007

Fall is a wonderful time of year, in my opinion. One of the things I love best about fall is the harvest gathering. An old homestead, owned by the City of Missoula and located just a mile or two as the crow flies from Missoula, puts such a gathering on every year.

Around the fire folks visit, while a bluegrass duo plays and enjoys the heat.

What is it about fall? Is it the cool-but-not-cold air, the beautiful colors, the internal knowing that winter is on its way? Probably it's a combination of these and other things? Whatever the reasons, I love the sweet melancholy feeling of fall.

The old barn at the homestead.

Sheep, clouds, and Ellie and I with an apple.

Jen: always a smile.