

NEW BOOK SERIES IN EDUCATION:

ADVANCES IN INNOVATION EDUCATION

Editor: Bharath Sriraman, The University of Montana

Industry, Government-sanctioned Research and development and the Private sectors have historically been the champions of fostering innovation with the aim of addressing changing human needs as well as economic gain. The connectivity of the 21st century coupled with advances in information systems and the unchecked advent of globalization have resulted in challenges to existing institutional structures in place as well as a greater awareness of inequities within and across different regions of the world. Innovation and innovation education are the new buzz words increasingly inundating popular discourses in different media. The aim of this book series is to unfold the conceptual foundations of innovation from historical, socio-political, economic, scientific and ethical perspectives, as well as apply these foundations towards issues confronting education, science and society in the 21st century..

Books in development in the series:

- * Innovation and Philosophical Denial - Robert Este
- * Ethics and Innovation - Issues and Perspectives - Bharath Sriraman and Don Ambrose
- * Indigenous Issues and the 21st Century Innovation Dynamics in Emergent Market Economies Universalities and Peculiarities of Innovation Bharath Sriraman
